1 You have five minutes to write down any words you associate with university. Compare your words with the rest of the class. Explain your choices if necessary.

2 Work with a partner. Discuss these questions.

- 1 Do you want to go to university when you finish school? Why/Why not?
- 2 What do you think are the biggest differences between studying at school and university?

Carol writes: I've heard that studying at uni is very different from studying at school? Is that true? And if so in what way or ways?

Answered by Mandy 7 hours ago: Hi Carol. For a start, it maybe depends a little bit on what subject you're studying. But basically I'd agree that it is quite different. At school, your teachers are usually guiding you and checking what you're doing all the time. At university, you have to organize yourself much more. Of course, you'll have lectures and tutorials, but you don't have to attend as many classes as at school. That means you have more freedom, but you had better plan ahead and organize your time well for reading and assignments or you can suddenly find yourself in real trouble. Don't panic though. Apart from your professors, tutors, and lecturers, most universities have specialists (in our uni, librarians) who can help and offer advice about making the best use of your time.

Mark writes: How difficult is it to cope with all the day to day things like shopping, cooking or washing your clothes when you have to study hard too?

Answered by Jim 2 days ago: Good point, Mark! One of the biggest differences about life at university and being at school is that when you live away from home you suddenly have to do all those everyday jobs that many of us don't have to do when we live at home with our parents. My advice is simple. First you should check your teaching timetable to find out the times of your lectures, tutorials, etc. Then you ought to choose the best day and time to do chores and try to keep to that schedule. When you plan ahead, you can always find time for everything, even your dirty socks!

3 You have three minutes to read the text and answer these questions.

- 1 What type of people do you think are asking the questions?
- 2 What type of people do you think are answering the questions?
- 3 Where do you think this text is from, and what do you think the purpose is?

Robert writes: Is it difficult to make friends in the first few weeks of university?

Answered by Richard 12 hours ago: Although you're going to be busy in the first few weeks, you must find time to get out and meet people. The good news is that everyone is in the same position as you. In the first week, you can see all the different clubs and societies that your university has to offer, and when you join one you're bound to meet other people with similar interests. In general, in my opinion, extra-curricular activities are a really important part of life at university. You can't study 24 hours a day. Anyway, I reckon most employers will want their employees to have interests outside their studies too, and that they're sociable.

Francine writes: Are there lots of exams like at school, or is assessment different at university?

Answered by Penny one day ago: Hi Francine. I suppose it depends what subject you're studying, but I'd say that in general at university you don't have to do as many exams as at school. Personally, I only have to do exams at the end of the year. On the other hand, I do have to hand in lots of coursework throughout the year - projects, essays, assignments and practical tasks. You mustn't underestimate the importance of this coursework as it will all contribute to your final mark or grade.

▶ STUDY SKILLS

Read the next task. What is the biggest difference between this task and the one before? STUDY SKILLS ▶ page 147

4 Read the text again and answer the questions.

- 1 According to Mandy, what is the main difference between studying at school and at university?
- 2 According to Mandy, which different people can help you to adjust to this different style of studying?
- 3 According to Jim, how is life at university different from studying at home?
- 4 According to Jim, how can you find time to do everything at university?
- 5 According to Richard, what is a good way to make new friends at university?
- 6 According to Richard, why is it important to make friends and do other things apart from studying at university?
- 7 According to Penny, how is evaluation at university different from evaluation at school?

5 Match the underlined words in the text with the explanations.

- 1 teaching staff at a university
- 2 people who work in a library
- 3 to deal successfully with
- 4 sure or certain to
- 5 an informal way of saying university
- 6 things that you do at school or university that are not part of your course
- 7 small classes at university
- 8 talks given at university to large groups of students

6 SPEAKING What about you?

- 1 Do you think the information in the text is useful? Why/Why not?
- 2 What do you imagine are the best and worst things about studying at university?

The answers:

1)

college- business- medicine- faculty.

2)

1- Yes, I do. To complete my study and become a doctor.

2- There is much more freedom at university because you don't live at home and you have to organise all of your time and your money.

3)

1- The questions are asked by students who are thinking of going to university.

2- The questions are answered by students who are already studying at university.

3- It is an online forum where students can ask questions about university life and clarify any doubts they have.

4)

1- According to Mandy, the main difference between studying at school and at university is that you have to organize yourself a lot more and plan ahead.

2- According to Mandy, you have professors, tutors and lecturers as well as specialists such as university librarians who can help offer advice about making the best use of your time.

3- According to Jim, life at university is different from studying at home because you also have to do all the everyday chores that your parents used to do.

4- According to Jim, you can find time to do everything at university if you check your teaching timetable, make a schedule and keep to it.

5- According to Richard, a good way to make new friends at university is to take part in the extra-curricular activities, clubs and societies that your university offers.

6- According to Richard, it is important to make friends and do other things apart from studying at university because it is an important part of life at university and it makes you more interesting to future employers.

7- According to Penny, evaluation at university is different from evaluation at school because there are not so many exams – usually only one at the end of the year – as well as coursework.

5)

1- professors, tutors and lecturer.

2- librarians.

3- to cope with.

4- bound to.

5- uni.

6- extra-curricular activities.

7- tutorials.

8- lectures.

6)

1- I think the answers are really interesting and could help me become a more organized student at university.

2- I think the best things about university are the freedom, new friends you meet and finding out about new things.

I think the worst things are that you have to do everyday chores and the final exams at the end of the year.

3)

You should arrive early.

You must carry ID.

You mustn't cheat in tests.

You mustn't eat or drink in class.

You ought to participate in class.

You have to wear special shoes and clothes for PE.

▶ EXAM SUCCESS

The next activity is a cloze activity. You have a text with gaps, but you do not have the words to fill the gaps. What type of words do you think you will have to put in?

EXAM SUCCESS ▶ page 74

5 Complete the text by filling in each gap with one word.

You (a) 'd / had better be careful if you drive (b) too / very fast near a school in a town in Bahah Province. Everybody knows you (c) must pay attention to speed limits (in Saudi Arabia the legal speed limit in towns is 70–80 km/h). But it's even more important to respect speed limits where (d) there are many children crossing the road. So, the police have decided to punish drivers (e) in a very original way. The police think that drivers ought (f) to realise what they are doing when they are driving fast in areas near schools. They have decided that the best punishment is to make the bad drivers sit at school and answer (g) questions from school children. The students ask (h) the drivers to think about what they (i) have done. The result is that the drivers quickly change the way they think about driving. (j) However / But it isn't only the drivers who think about the consequences of dangerous driving. One of the 15-year-old students at the school said that it would help him to be a good driver when he was (k) old enough to drive. So you (l) don't have to be a driver already to learn about the rules of the road!

6a SPEAKING Work with a partner. You have a friend who wants to become a maths teacher one day. Think of advice to give them. Use must, mustn't, have to, should, shouldn't, had better, ought to. Make a list of your ideas.

6b Compare your list with another pair. Are your ideas similar?

You have to get very good marks in maths. You should be patient with people when they don't understand.

Noun suffixes -er, -or, -ist, -ian, -ee

1 Look at these words. They all have suffixes which make nouns. Are they nouns for people or things? People ceremony, university, degree, students, stage, graduation.

1)

6b)

In the photo I can see three people. In the bottom left corner there are two people dressed in black and in the middle of the photo there's another person standing on some steps. In the background, there's an old building. It looks like Masmak Castle. So perhaps the three people in the photo are sightseeing. At the top of the photo there is a clear blue sky and it looks like a nice sunny day.

- 1 Read this information about a scholarship at a university. Underline the qualities that an ideal candidate should have. Do you think you would be a good candidate for the scholarship? Why/Why not?

Central College

STUDENTS & APPLICANTS

Society Scholarship

A number of annual scholarships are given to students of English who have a special interest in British history and/or who would like to study in Britain in the future.

Applicants must have good grades and should be active in extra-curricular activities such as sports (emphasis on swimming, tennis, football and hockey) and social activities. Please send a letter of application to this address.

- 2 Read the letter of application for this scholarship. Do you think this person is a good candidate or not? Why? Make a list of reasons for your answer.

Dear Sir,

I am writing to apply for the Central College Society Scholarship which I saw advertised on the university website.

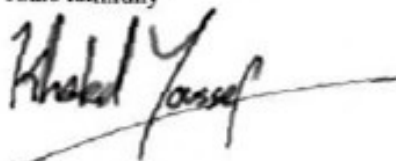

I believe I would be perfect for this scholarship for the following reasons. Firstly, my best subjects at school are English and History and my ambition is to study one day in the United Kingdom, to discover more about the people, places and traditions. My grades this year have been very good, with an average mark of 80% in my exams.

I also love sports, particularly football. I am the captain of my school football team. As captain of the team, I am responsible for organising social activities and events to raise money for the team.

I would be very grateful to receive the chance to study at your university with a Central College Scholarship and I am sure that I could make a valuable contribution to the English department.

I look forward to receiving your reply.

Yours faithfully

Khaled Youssef

Useful expressions and conventions in formal letters

- If we know the name of the person we are writing to, we begin Dear Mr/Mrs/Ms and their surname. We finish Yours sincerely.
- If we don't know the name of the person we are writing to, we begin Dear Sir or Madam. We finish Yours Yours faithfully
- In formal letters we do not use contractions, e.g. we write I would, not I'd.
- We often use more formal words and expressions, e.g. I would be very grateful to receive the chance... instead of I'd be really happy to get the chance.
- We often start formal letters with I am writing to ... and then explain why we are writing.
- We often end formal letters with expressions like I look forward to receiving your reply.

- 4a Look at the task and write the letter. Use the expressions and conventions in the Writing Bank to help you.

Read the information below about a scholarship. Write a letter of application. Include information to make yourself the ideal candidate. Write between 150 and 200 words.

STUDENTS & APPLICANTS

Combined English Scholarship

We have two scholarships for students who are interested in combining their chosen subject (any subjects are possible) with an English Studies programme. Applicants need to have good academic marks and should have an interest in extra-curricular activities such as literature or debating, etc. Active participation in a sport is also an advantage. Send your letter of application to this address.

▶ EXAM SUCCESS

How many words should you write in your text? Who are you writing to? Why is it important to know this in an exam?

EXAM SUCCESS ▶ page 74

- 4b When you finish your letter, exchange it with a partner. Prepare seven questions to ask them in an interview to get the scholarship.

In your letter you say that your marks are usually high. Which are your best and worst subjects?

- 4c Role-play your interviews. Would you give your partner the scholarship?

The answers:

2)

He is a good candidate because:

- His best subjects are English and History.
- He wants to study in the UK in the future and find out more about the country.
- His school grades are very good.
- He loves sports – especially football: he is captain of his school football team.
- He organises social activities to raise money for the team.

4a)

Dear Sir,

I am writing to apply for the Combined English Scholarship.

I believe that I would be the perfect candidate for this scholarship. My chosen subject is journalism and English has always been one of my favourite subjects. I would love to study at a university in the UK or the US one day.

My academic marks have been excellent this year in all subjects. I am also a member of a reading club. I enjoy all types of team sports and play hockey for the school team.

I would be very grateful to receive the chance to study on the Combined English Scholarship programme and am sure that I would take advantage of this fantastic opportunity.

I look forward to receiving your reply.

Have to, don't have to

Form

Affirmative	You have to go to school until you are 16.
Negative	You don't have to wait until you're 20 to drive.
Question	Do you have to be 18 to drive?
Short answers	Yes, you do./No, you don't.

Use

We use have to to talk about things which are obligatory or necessary. It often describes obligations imposed on us by other people and authorities. You have to have a passport to check in.

We use don't have to to talk about things which are not obligatory or necessary. Students don't have to pay full price at this shop.

Must, mustn't

Affirmative	You must listen to what the teacher says.
Negative	You mustn't copy in exams.

We use must to talk about rules, regulations and obligations. It often describes obligations that come internally, from ourselves.

I must remember to get my passport.

We use mustn't to talk about prohibitions. You mustn't smoke here.

Must is not very common in questions. We usually use have to.

Can, can't

We use can to give permission and can't to refuse permission.

You can use the computers but you can't eat in the classroom.

Should, shouldn't, ought to, had ('d) better

Affirmative	You should/ought to/had better respect others.
Negative	You shouldn't study too late at night.
Question	Should I stop now?
Short answers	Yes, you should./No, you shouldn't.

We use should, shouldn't, ought to, had ('d) better to give and ask for advice and recommendations.

You should read this book.

Ought to and had ('d) better are slightly less common in the negative and question forms.

First conditional

If + present simple, ... will/won't + infinitive

If you study more, you will get better marks.

If we don't do the exam, we won't get a certificate.

The present simple comes in the part of the sentence with if.

We use the first conditional to talk about possible and probable situations in the future, and their consequences.

If you aren't careful (possible future situation), you will have an accident (the consequence of this situation).

Second conditional

If + past simple, ... would/wouldn't + infinitive

If I had a million pounds, I'd travel around the world.

If we didn't revise, we wouldn't remember much.

If can go at the start or the end of the sentence. If the part with if goes at the start of the sentence, we must use a comma before the second half of the sentence.

If we had more free time, we'd do more sport.

We can use were instead of was with if.

If I were/was a teacher, I would make my students work hard.

We use the second conditional to talk about imaginary or improbable situations and their consequences. The situations and consequences are in the present or future, not in the past.

If I became famous, I would try to be a good example to young people.

We use If I were you, I'd ... to give advice.

The Ig[®] Nobel Prizes

A Everybody knows about Nobel prizes. They are given every year to the best scientists and writers in the world. Not so many people are aware of Ig[®] Nobel prizes though. These are also given annually to scientists. But they are organised by a group called Improbable Research. Their aim is to inform people of scientific investigation which 'makes people laugh, but then makes them think'.

B When we think of scientific research we usually think of practical projects which make a big difference to our everyday lives, like inventing smaller and better laptops, satnavs, and digital cameras. But not all scientific projects are like this. The Ig[®] Nobel prizes go to scientists whose work is funny, unusual, and different. Here are some examples of projects which have won the prize.

C A Japanese scientist called Mayu Yamamoto won a prize a few years ago. She discovered a new way of extracting vanillin from cow excrement. Vanillin is the basis of vanilla flavouring and fragrance. It is used in the food industry and in cosmetics. A famous ice cream shop created a new ice cream in honour of Yamamoto's discovery and presented it at her prize ceremony. The ice cream contained no cow excrement. The Japanese scientist doesn't think that her discovery will ever be used in food. She reckons that if people know where the vanilla flavour comes from, they won't want to eat it!

D Talking about food, a food psychologist from New York called Dr Brian Wansink won his Ig[®] Nobel prize for an interesting experiment with soup. He invented a never-ending bowl. When people ate tomato soup from the bowl, the bowl was automatically filled again from a tube connected to the bottom of the bowl. He discovered that people ate 73% more than usual when they used this bowl. But they didn't feel full.

The conclusion was that we decide how much to eat with our eyes, not with the way our stomach feels.

E Another Ig Nobel Prize was won by neuroscientists at Barcelona University. They were interested in exploring the way in which languages are acquired by the brain. They discovered that rats cannot tell the difference between somebody speaking Dutch backwards and somebody speaking Japanese backwards. 64 rats were taught to press a button when they heard normal Dutch or Japanese. They could learn to do this.

But when they heard the languages backwards they had no idea what was happening.

F Other scientists have won prizes for thinking about questions like 'Why is the sound of fingernails on blackboards so awful?', 'Why does dry spaghetti usually break into three pieces, not two?', or 'How many photos do you need to take to be fairly sure that nobody in a group has their eyes closed?'. Maybe these questions are different from the typical questions that scientists ask themselves, and maybe questions like this won't change the world. But they will make you laugh ... and then think.

cut make paint repair take out test

He had his hair cut.

He had his car repaired.

She had her eyes tested.

He had his bedroom painted.

She had a dress

He had his tooth

made. taken out.

The answers:

1a)

In all three sentences, somebody else does the action.

1b)

1- the object of the sentence (i.e. the noun).

2- verbs.

3- Yes – in sentence 1 have is in the present simple, in 2 and 3 have and got are in the past simple.

4- by introduces the agent.

3 Complete the text by writing one word in each space.

Computers are (a) an essential part of most of our lives nowadays. But computers are similar (b) to cars. Many people can drive, but not many people know exactly (c) how a car works. And that is why people usually (d) have/get their cars serviced by a professional mechanic instead of (e) doing it themselves. Computers are the same for many people. They know how to (f) press the 'start' button. But once something goes wrong, they have no idea how to fix it. Sometimes computers do strange things. They have a bug or crash and then they lose data because of the malfunction. But many problems are caused (g) by human error. One type of problem is becoming more and more common. It's called 'computer rage'. People get so angry and stressed because of their computers, they're so tired (h) of working with them all day, that they (i) do something violent to them. One man was so angry with his laptop that he threw it at the wall. And then he had to take the computer to a special company to get (j) it fixed! Another laptop (k) was destroyed by a man who put it on top of his car when he was looking for his car keys. He got (l) into/in the car but forgot that the laptop had (m) been left on top of the car. He drove away and the computer fell onto the road. He then drove right over it! He tried to get the laptop examined (n) by a specialist. But unfortunately computer specialists can't fix everything.

4 Rewrite these sentences using the construction have something done in the correct tense. If we know who exactly did the action, introduce them with by.

- They fixed our computer last week.
We had our computer fixed last week.
- They've reinstalled the operating system on his computer.
He had the operating system reinstalled on his computer.

Student B: Oil tankers are bad because if they have an accident at sea they can cause an ecological disaster.

✚ Spaceships

Student A: Spaceships are good because we can find out more about the universe.

Student B: Spaceships are bad because they cost too much money.

✚ X-ray machines

Student A: X-ray machines are good because they are very important in medicine and for security purposes.

Student B: X-ray machines are bad for you because they expose you to radiation.

- 1 Work with a partner. Look at the statement and make a list of arguments for and against.

Life would be better without mobile phones.

- 2 Read this essay. Does it contain any of your ideas from 1?

Thirty years ago almost nobody had a mobile phone. Nowadays it seems everybody has one, from the youngest to the oldest. Is this a good thing or a bad thing?

Mobile phones can be useful for a number of reasons. Firstly, they allow us to communicate quickly in almost any situation. This can be really useful in emergencies, for example. Furthermore, they make it easy for people who are alone to be in contact with others. In this way, they do not feel so lonely. Finally, they are useful for other things, not just for making calls. For instance, we can use them to play games and take photos.

However, mobile phones have disadvantages too. People depend on them too much and make calls which are not really necessary. What's more, their use can be dangerous, for example when they are used by people when they are driving. In addition, people often use them in public places and this can be very annoying, for example in restaurants or on public transport.

To sum up, mobile phones have advantages but, on the other hand, they can also create problems. In my opinion, life would be worse without them because they often make our lives easier. However, we should limit their use because people often become addicted to them and use them for no real reason.

'The computer is the most important invention ever.'

Write an essay giving arguments for and against this statement and give your own opinion.

- 5b Write your essay individually. Use expressions from the Writing Bank.

The answers:

5)

When we talk about the most important invention ever, it is important to explain what we mean. As far as I am concerned, this means the invention that has most changed the life of all humanity. Almost everyone would say that the computer is a very important invention. But is it the most important invention ever?

Firstly, when we talk about computers, we can say that a very important invention in the history of computers was the 'personal computer'. People can now use their computer for work and pleasure anytime, anywhere and for almost anything. What's more, computers used in medicine can save lives and help people live longer and happier lives. In addition to computers, we can talk about the World Wide Web. Because of this anyone can access information from anywhere in the world. This revolution in sharing information has changed the world dramatically.

On the other hand, some people say that the computer is just another everyday product and it is not that different from a washing machine or a television. You could say that the most important inventions came before the computer – the car, electricity and the telephone. The computer would not have been possible without electricity.

To sum up, it is difficult to say what the most important invention ever is. There are many arguments for and against the computer. Personally, I think computers are incredibly important for our generation and will continue to be important in the future. However, we cannot forget all the other important inventions that have changed the way we live today.

Language reference and revision

▶ Grammar reference

The passive

Form

Subject + be + past participle (+ by + agent)

The prizes are given at a ceremony. (present simple)

This invention is being used by millions of people.
(present continuous)

These computers have been used by NASA. (present perfect)

The car wasn't invented in 1730. (past simple)

This type of energy will be used in the future. (will)

We make the passive with the correct tense and form of the verb to be and the past participle of the verb.

To make questions in the passive, we put the first auxiliary verb before the subject.

Is the ceremony being shown on TV?

Has the ceremony been filmed?

We use the preposition by to introduce the agent – the person or thing which does the action.

Use

We use the passive when:

- 1 we are more interested in the action than the people who do the action.
The bridge was built in 1866.
English is spoken here.
- 2 we do not know who exactly does the action.
My things have been moved.
His bag has been stolen.
- 3 it is obvious or understood who did the action.
The phone was disconnected at 5.30pm.
Smoking is not permitted.

In some languages, reflexive or impersonal forms are used instead of the passive.

Have something done

Form

Subject + have or get + object + past participle (by + agent)

I get my eyes tested once a year. (present simple)

He is having lunch prepared by the chef. (present continuous)

We have had the house decorated. (present perfect)

He had his hair cut. (past simple)

They were getting the car serviced. (past continuous)

We'll get our passports renewed. (will)

With this structure we make different tenses by changing the tense of have or get.

Use

- 1 We use have something done to talk about actions which we don't do ourselves; somebody or something does them for us. We often pay them to do this action. Get is slightly more informal.
I don't know anything about computers so when I have a problem I have my computer fixed by a friend who studied computers at university.
Son, you need to get your hair cut!
In this shop you can have shirts made specially for you.
- 2 We can use the preposition by to introduce the agent – the person or thing which does the action. We don't use by if it is not important who does the action.

EXAM SUCCESS ► page 74

The basic principle behind many of the most famous inventions in history is: identify a need, then work out how to meet that need. As a general rule, this is not very far from something you might read in one of those 'How to Succeed in Business' books. But financial gain doesn't have to be the motivation, as these Saudi inventors clearly show.

A Mohanad Gabriel Abo Dayah

By the age of 23, Mohanad Gabriel Abo Dayah, an industrial engineering student at King Fahd University for Petroleum and Minerals, had already registered 22 inventions. One of his early projects was a submarine called 'Arabian Falcon' that could descend to depths of 5,625 metres. Later, though, he began to concentrate on helping others more directly. At the Ibtikar exhibition in 2010, he presented two new inventions: a box-like electronic circuit called Sensor x, designed to help young students with their own inventions, and a one-year school curriculum in Arabic that focuses on training young inventors. One of the most remarkable things about him is his determination to succeed despite disabilities: a traffic accident left him blind and with only one leg. However, as he says, 'I am not disabled or blind, I am an inventor.'

B Nuha Talal al-Zailai

Nuha Talal al-Zailai, a lecturer at Jeddah's King Abdulaziz University, believes that the business world is letting Saudi inventors down. Even though inventions can generate large profits, she says, business people are often reluctant to provide investment and support for research. Her own work shows her belief in products that will serve humanity. She first developed a device to test for malaria and other blood diseases, then a natural remedy to treat a disease caused by eating under-cooked meat, raw eggs or unpasteurized milk. She finally gained recognition for her third invention, a stationery kit to help blind or partially-sighted people write letters in any language. The kit took her three years to develop and won her a gold medal in Taiwan.

C Meshal Harasani

From an early age, Meshal Harasani realised that he wanted to help children who were disabled to play an active part in society, and this has been his motivation as an inventor. For example, when he was only 16, he developed a mobile phone that could be used by blind people (it is estimated there are 350 thousand visually impaired people in the Saudi Arabia). It wasn't the first such device, but he wanted his version to be freely available, so the software can be obtained free from Magrabi Centers. Meshal has also invented a way of making Saudi riyal currency 'readable' by the blind, as well as a special aircraft seat for the disabled that can be easily lifted onto a plane without disturbing other passengers or touching the disabled person. Meshal hasn't applied for a patent on this invention to give him exclusive rights to it, arguing that he doesn't intend to gain financially, so it would be a waste of time. He says, 'My method now is to invent something and give it away to whoever is in need of it.'

The answers:

All of these people lost an arm or hand in accidents and now have a bionic arm or hand.

Writing)

Many students do not like wearing school uniform. In my opinion, there are advantages and disadvantages to wearing school uniform.

Firstly, it is much easier to get ready for school in the morning when you don't have to think too much about what you are going to wear. Secondly, everyone in the school looks the same. There is less competition between students for who has the most expensive or trendiest clothes, and personally I think that it is good for students to be more equal. In some schools where there is no uniform, students feel that they have to spend a lot of money on clothes for school, and I think that is a bad thing. Finally, some people think that students look smarter when they wear a school uniform instead of jeans.

On the other hand, some students think they should be able to express their personality by choosing their own clothes. Furthermore, they have to buy their own clothes to wear at the weekend and in the holidays, so it would be more sensible to wear the same clothes for school. Finally, in my opinion school uniform does not look very smart. Students don't care about their school uniform clothes, and so they don't try to look nice.

To sum up, there are arguments for and against school uniform, but as far as I'm concerned, I would rather wear my own clothes for school.

8 Work with a partner. What do you know about Oxford University? Make notes and then exchange ideas.

9 Read the text. Do any of your ideas appear? Ignore the gaps in the text.

Oxford is the oldest university (a) in the English-speaking world. It is difficult to give an exact date for when it began but teaching existed at Oxford in some form in 1096. Many people who are responsible (b) for global affairs have studied at Oxford. Twenty-five British Prime Ministers have (c) been educated at Oxford, but there have also been at least 30 international leaders, 47 Nobel Prize winners, 6 kings and 50 Olympic medal winners. Of course, there have been other famous people studying and teaching at Oxford. The poets TS Eliot, WH Auden and John Betjeman (d) was all students at the university.

To get a degree at Oxford, students usually only do two sets of examinations – the first at the end of the first year and the second at the end of the course. Students need to be good (e) at organising their work themselves so they are ready (f) for their exams when they finally come. Oxford is a modern and vibrant university, but it is also a place of old traditions and rules. To do exams, male students (g) must wear a dark suit, black socks and shoes, a white shirt and a white bow tie. (h) if they don't wear these clothes, they won't be allowed to take the exam.

Women (i) don't wear special clothes – just something smart and not too colourful. But all students have to wear a gown and a hat called a mortarboard. The good news is that they can take (j) off their hats while they are actually doing their exams!

Although he is still only 14, Nabil Suwaidi is well on his way to being a sporting superstar. He plays a lot of different sports, but football is the sport which he loves the most. As a child in Jeddah, he always went with his father to watch al-Ittihad, whose stadium is very close to where they lived. When they became champions in 2008, he says it was the happiest day of his life. Of course he used to dream of playing for them, but at the time he was still only playing for fun. It wasn't until he started secondary school that he began to take it more seriously, and he was made captain of the school team a year later. 'All the other players were at least two years older than me,' he says, 'but it didn't cause any difficulties. They could see I only wanted

35 the best for the whole team.' What is his ultimate ambition? 'Of course it would be great to play for the Saudi national team. But at the moment I'm happy with what I'm doing.'

3 CARLOS GOMEZ

At the age of 14, Carlos Gomez is already junior squash champion for his region of Spain, and those who've seen him play say he's by far the best young player in the country, with the potential to be one of the best ever. 'My father was a huge squash fan, and an amateur player too,' he explains. 'I've been playing for as long as I can remember, and watching TV footage of all the great players. The one I have always liked best is the amazing Jahangir Khan, who was world champion six times in a row. At his height, he didn't lose a match for five years. If I can be half as successful as he was, I'll be happy. Spain has never had a world squash champion, but I aim to change that. It's my mission in life.'

4 WILLIAM DAVIES

70
75

Sixteen-year-old William Davies was born in Weymouth, a town on the south coast of England where the Olympic sailing took place in 2012. He has always lived near the sea, so perhaps it's not surprising to find that he's so good at sailing. But obviously not everyone who grows up by the sea ends up being a sailor. 'I was lucky, I suppose. My family were quite wealthy and my dad had a boat. He used to take me out in it when I was pretty young and teach me how to handle the boat. With all that practice, I couldn't really fail to get quite good at it.' Such modesty is characteristic of William, who is at heart rather a shy young man. He's actually a lot better than 'quite good', having won sailing competitions involving people much older and more experienced than he is. His greatest excitement, though, came from watching his hero Ben Ainslie when he won his fourth sailing gold medal at the 2012 Olympics, right there in William's home town. 'One day,' says William, 'I want to be as good as he is, if that's at all possible.'

GRAMMAR GUIDE

Defining relative clauses

1a Look at these sentences. The words in bold are relative pronouns. Use them to complete the rules a–e.

- 1 He is the squash player who was world champion six times in a row.
- 2 Football is the sport which he loves the most.
- 3 Al-Ittihad are the team whose stadium is very close to where they lived.
- 4 2012 was the year when Ben Ainslie won his fourth gold medal.
- 5 Jahangir Khan is the player (that) I have always liked best.
- 6 He's the player that won every match last year.
- 7 Weymouth is the town where the Olympic® sailing took place.

- a We use who and that with people.
- b We use which and that with things.
- c We use whose to talk about possessions.
- d We use where with places.
- e We use when with times.

1b Why do you think we call these words 'defining' relative clauses? What do they define?

Why can we omit that in sentence 5 but not in 6?

GRAMMAR REFERENCE ▶ page 36

2 Choose the correct alternative. If you think both are correct, choose both.

- 1 Football is a game which/where many people play.
- 2 A stadium is a place that/where you can watch football matches.
- 3 The people who/whom watch sports events are called spectators.
- 4 The leader of the Tour de France is the person who/whose shirt is yellow.
- 5 June is the month when/which Wimbledon starts.
- 6 A jockey is a person who/that rides a horse in a race.
- 7 Brazil is the country where/which has won the FIFA World Cup™ most times.
- 8 Ice hockey is a sport that/which is very popular in Canada.

3 Complete the text with relative pronouns.

One of the most tiring sports in the world must be water polo. Water polo is sport (a) which/that is similar to handball, except that it's played in water. The rules were first developed by a man (b) whose name was William Wilson. He was a keen swimmer (c) who/that ran a swimming club in Glasgow, Scotland. Originally, it was a sport (d) which/that allowed a lot of rough physical contact and the first match similar to water polo took place in the sea, (e) where twelve members of a rowing club competed for 15 minutes before the ball burst. Nowadays, the sport is more organised, but still physically very demanding: you have to swim continuously as well as passing and catching the ball, so it can only be played by people (f) who/that are very fit. Matches take place in a pool, (g) where seven players on each team throw the ball to each other and try to put the ball into the opposing team's net. One player on each team is the goalkeeper, (h) who/that tries to stop the other team from scoring. An interesting variation of the sport is played in the Pacific island of Hawaii, (i) where surf polo was invented in the 1940s. As you might guess, this version is played in the sea, and the players are on surfboards.

4 Match the sentence halves with a relative pronoun. Look up the words in italics> in your dictionary if necessary.

- 1 The winner in a gymnastics competition is the person
 - 2 A referee is the person
 - 3 2020 is a year
 - 4 A room with tatami mats is the place
 - 5 Time out is a moment in a basketball match
 - 6 A black belt is a thing
 - 7 In football, goalkeepers are often the players
 - 8 The puck is the thing
- a you get when you are really good at judo or karate.
 - b shirt has a number 1 on the back.
 - c you hit in an ice hockey match.
 - d mark is the highest.
 - e there will be the Olympic Games®.
 - f the players stop playing.
 - g job is to control football matches.
 - h you do judo واجباتي موقع

The answers:

1b)

The purpose of a defining relative clause is to clearly define who or what we are talking about. Without this information, it would be difficult to know who or what is meant.

The relative pronoun can be omitted when it is the object of the clause.

4)

1- (d) The winner in a gymnastics competition is the person whose mark is the highest.

2- (g) A referee is the person whose job is to control football matches.

3- (e) 2020 is a year when there will be the Olympic Games.

4-(h) A room with a tatami mats is the place where you do judo.

5- (f) Timeout is a moment in a basketball match when the players stop playing.

6- (a) A black belt is a thing you get when you are really good at judo.

7-(b) In football, goalkeepers are often the players whose shirt has a number 1 on the back.

8- (c) The puck is the thing –/that you hit in an ice hockey match.

referee – someone whose job is to make sure that players in a game obey the rules tatami – a type of carpet made from the dried stems of plants, used in traditional Japanese buildings.

time out – a short period of time in a game of basketball or ice hockey when players rest and plan their game.

black belt – the highest level of skill in some types of martial art such as judo or karate, represented by the right to wear a black belt.

goalkeeper – the player whose job is to stop the ball going into the goal in games such as football.

puck – the round flat piece of rubber that you hit in the game of ice hockey.

موقع واجباتي

The answers:

1)

Footballers are paid huge amounts of money but they don't contribute anything to society. They do not invent anything or help in medical research.

6)

I'd like to begin by saying that I think cheating in sports should not be allowed. However, there are different forms of cheating, and in most cases the guilty people should not be banned for life.

Firstly, athletes are very competitive and they will do anything to win. Especially as they get older, it is difficult for them to compete with other, younger athletes and it must be very tempting to cheat just to gain an advantage.

Secondly, their coaches and advisors sometimes tell them to cheat in various ways, or at least they make it clear that cheating is expected. If, for example, a defender doesn't foul an opponent who goes on to score a winning goal, the defender's coach would not be very pleased.

However, it is also true that sport must be a fair contest in which the best person or team wins. Sports people who are guilty of cheating bring a bad name to the sport, and of course they should be punished.

The point I'm trying to make is that the penalty of life bans is too strict. A hard punishment like a four or five year ban is enough. Athletes often lose their medals and their reputation is ruined. To sum up, I think that we should not ban sports people for life but we should take cheating very seriously.

Book Away from Home

128 of 130 people found the following review helpful:

Away from Home

By Hassan Ashraf \(UK\) – See all my reviews

- The clue is in the title: this is a novel about living away from your own country, but it's also about football (the phrase 'away from home' means a team is playing at another team's ground). The main character, Jamil, is a young footballer from Saudi Arabia who gets the chance to join a team in Italy.
- The first chapter opens with Jamil arriving at the airport in Padania, a fictional city in southern Italy. Although there are flashbacks to his experiences at home in Saudi Arabia, the setting for the story is almost completely Italian. Jamil is a traditional person with strong family ties, and he has never been abroad before, so he is excited and worried about his new situation. The plot is basically about his experiences and the people he meets as he tries to fit in with his new situation but at the same time hold on to his own beliefs. These experiences are usually emotional but there are moments of comedy too, involving misunderstandings on both sides. I don't want to spoil the ending for you, but I can say that Jamil returns home after two seasons. It isn't a normal happy ending, but it's not sad either.
- I enjoyed reading this book. There is enough uncertainty and suspense about what will happen to keep you turning the pages, and the description of the football matches are really exciting and realistic. The author is a part-time player himself as well as a journalist, so his writing style is good and he knows what he's talking about. The main thing is that he really makes you care about Jamil and what happens to him, and the minor characters are described well too.

- 3 Match the paragraphs with the descriptions of their content.

- Paragraph 1 → a recommendation to read the book
 Paragraph 2 → a summary of the plot or story
 Paragraph 3 → the writer's opinion of the book

- What tense does the writer use to summarise the plot?

- Does the writer give reasons and examples for his/her opinions?

Match Point is a book that was written by the American writer James L. Stevens. It was published in 1998 and sold a lot of copies around the world. It tells the story of a young tennis player from Turkey called Mehmet, who has the ambition to be a world champion. His parents and his coach are sure he has the ability, so they support him and do everything they can to help.

The plot is really interesting because it shows how Mehmet's feelings gradually change as he tries to reach his goal. Books like this often describe how the main character overcomes problems and finally succeeds, but this book is more realistic. Perhaps this is because James L. Stevens was himself a successful tennis coach and so understands players and their feelings.

In the book, Mehmet, his family and coach decide that he can only succeed by going to a tennis training camp in the USA and they manage to save enough money to send him there. While he is there, everyone agrees that he is good enough to be future champion, and he wins nearly all his matches. In his mind, though, Mehmet is beginning to realize that tennis isn't the only important thing in his life.

Match Point is really not just about tennis but about life itself, and this is what I like about the book. It is also the reason why it is so popular. If you haven't read it already, I can definitely recommend it.

Defining relative clauses

Form

Major T H Gem and J B Peraia were the people who/that helped to invent modern tennis.

That's the sport which/that I play.

That's the player whose team is top of the league.

Beijing is the place where they held the 2008 Olympics®.

Sunday is the day when I play tennis.

We use who and that for people, which and that for things, whose for possessions, where for places, and when for times.

In defining relative clauses we can omit who, which, or that when a noun or pronoun comes immediately after.

That's the sport that I play. = That's the sport I play.

He's the tennis player that my brother likes. = He's the tennis player my brother likes.

but

That's the sport that is popular. = That's the sport is popular.

He's the tennis player that won the cup. = He's the tennis player won the cup.

We do not use commas in defining relative clauses.

Use

We use defining relative clauses to give essential information about the person, thing, place or time in the first half of the sentence.

The sentence does not usually make sense without the relative clause.

Rafael Nadal is the tennis player who won Wimbledon in 2008.

Rafael Nadal is the tennis player.

Non-defining relative clauses

Form

Major T H Gem and J B Peraia, who were English and Spanish, helped to invent modern tennis.

Tennis, which is my favourite sport, is a very old game.

Talal, whose team is top of the league, is a very good player.

Beijing, where they held the 2008 Olympics, is a fascinating place.

Yesterday, when I played tennis, was a really warm day.

We use who for people, which for things, whose for possessions, where for places, and when for times.

We do not use that in non-defining relative clauses.

In non-defining relative clauses we cannot omit the relative pronoun.

We always use commas in non-defining relative clauses.

Use

We use non-defining relative clauses to give extra, non-essential information about the person, thing, place or time in the first half of the sentence. The commas work in a similar way to parentheses, showing that the information is not vital to the sentence.

Non-defining clauses are not so common in conversation and can seem formal.

This city, where I was born, is famous for its football teams.

- 2 Do you prefer traditional or modern architecture?
- 3 Have you ever been to an exhibition?
- 4 Do you enjoy poetry?
- 5 Have you ever performed in public?
- 6 Why is culture important for a country?

The answers:

1)

A large group of people is standing on a stage in front of some scenery that includes two large Saudi flags and a large video screen showing King Abdullah. Everyone is in traditional Saudi dress and there are three men dressed in white standing at the front. It's some kind of performance, obviously quite an important one because there are lots of lighting and a big audience.

A Three people had to be taken to hospital after falling into the latest 'artwork' at the Tate Modern gallery in London – a crack in the floor. The 152-metre crack runs along the floor in the Turbine Hall of the Tate Modern. Some people think the crack is painted and realise their mistake when they fall in! The work is by Colombian artist Doris Salcedo. It begins as a small crack but gets wider and wider. It's 152 metres long, but it's also nearly a metre deep in some places, although the artist said, 'It is bottomless. It is as deep as humanity.' A representative for the gallery said that three visitors had fallen in but that there hadn't been any serious injuries. 'Twelve thousand people visited the installation on the first day and there have been no other incidents,' said the representative. The installation cost £300,000 and took more than six months to complete. The artist told reporters that the installation had needed delicate work by artists on two continents. 'But what is important is the meaning of the piece. The making of it is not important.'

B For a recent exhibition in Dubai called Al Akhar (The Other), the Saudi abstract artist Zaman Jassim had a futuristic theme. The exhibition website said he had presented pieces in the form of satellite dishes to represent other worlds, or even non-existent dimensions. The pieces use various materials like metal, wood, brass, fibreglass and even waste products from factories.

The works also contain Arabic lettering, which is a connection to the artist's early life, when he can remember being inspired by calligraphy. This connection between past, present and future has always been a feature of Zaman's work. While he often uses traditional materials like wood that refer to old traditions, he doesn't simply copy the traditions but brings them into the present, a present that for future generations will become the past.

Zaman was born in al-Khobar, Saudi Arabia, in 1971, and was awarded a B.A degree from the Art Foundation Institute of Riyadh only 18 years later. He has worked in art education for 23 years, at the same time as building an international reputation in the art world. He has won many national and international prizes and had exhibitions all over the Middle East and in Europe, including solo exhibitions in Paris, France. He still lives in Saudi Arabia, in the coastal oasis of al-Qatif.

C A painting which was found in the street has just been sold for over $1 million. One morning in 2003 Elizabeth Gibson was taking her morning walk in Manhattan when she came across an abstract painting lying in a pile of rubbish. She said the painting had caught her attention so she decided to take it home. 'I know nothing about modern art but it didn't seem right for any piece of art to be thrown away like that,' she said. The painting turned out to be an interesting work by Mexican artist Rufino Tamayo, from 1970. It was on her wall for months when a friend told her that it might be valuable. Ms Gibson soon discovered that it was. It was worth over a million dollars! When Ms Gibson found out, she looked for the original owners and she gave the work back to them. The painting had been stolen from them in 1987 but it only reappeared when Ms Gibson found it in 2003. The owners were amazed to get their painting back and gave Ms Gibson a reward and a percentage of the sale of the painting.

7 SPEAKING Play in two teams. Take it in turns to try and remember things that teachers asked or told you to do this week. You get one point for each correct sentence.

Our English teacher asked us to do this exercise.

He told us not to speak in Arabic.

5)

a- The most common verbs are ask and tell.

b- We use to + infinitive in the reported command (i.e. the imperative changes to the infinitive).

c- not comes before to + infinitive i.e. not to do.

1 SPEAKING Work with a partner. Discuss these questions.

- Do you ever go on school trips? If so, what type of places do you usually go to? Yes. Museums.
- Did you go on school trips when you were at primary school? Where did you go? No, I didn't.

2 SPEAKING Work with a partner. Look at the pictures. Take it in turns to describe what you can see. Say what is happening and what the people are doing.

3 LISTENING Listen to a teenager talking about a school trip that was special for her. Which pictures are similar to her experience?

4 SPEAKING Work with a partner. Are these sentences true (T) or false (F)? Correct the false sentences.

- The school trip happened quite recently. T/F
- The girl enjoyed the TV programme at first. T/F
- She wanted to go on stage because she was pleased with her poem. T/F
- The girl was very embarrassed at first, but later she really enjoyed herself. T/F
- She only read one poem. T/F

6 Think about a memorable school trip or a trip to a famous place, exhibition or performance that you went on. Individually, make notes on these questions.

- Where did you go?
- When was it?
- How old were you?
- Who did you go with?
- What happened first? And later?
- How did you feel?
- What happened in the end?

Practice makes perfect

7a Work with a partner. Take it in turns to do this task. When you are listening, ask your partner questions to find out details and to help him or her to continue talking. Use words and expressions from the Speaking Bank.

Tell an English-speaking friend about a memorable school trip, or a memorable trip to a famous place, exhibition or performance. Say:

- where and when you went, and who you went with.
- what happened first.
- how you felt and how the trip ended.

7b Change partners and talk about your trip again.

The answers:

2)

The picture shows a group of school students. They are visiting a museum or gallery with their teacher. Some of them are looking at the things in the museum, and some are taking notes.

Some students are visiting a craft market with their teacher. They are looking at all the different things that people are selling, like baskets and textiles.

A girl is standing on a stage. She is probably reading poetry.

The picture shows a group of men in Saudi dress. They are performing the traditional Saudi 'sword dance'. Some people are watching them.

Some students are visiting an old town with their teacher. It might be the old part of a town in Saudi Arabia, or another Arabic country. One of the boys is pointing to the carving on a wooden door.

6)

1- Paris.

2- when I was in my first year at secondary school.

3- 16 years old.

4- with my class and our French teacher.

5- At first, the trip was great. The weather was fantastic and we did a lot of sightseeing – we visited all the most important monuments in Paris. A few days later, we visited the Georges

Pompidou Centre and we sat outside to have our lunch. We were watching some street performers. After about half an hour, I noticed that my school bag was missing. Then I noticed that I couldn't see my jacket. A few seconds later, my friend said he couldn't find his jacket or bag. Somebody had stolen our things!

6- I was annoyed.

7- We told the teacher and in the end, we went to the police station. We spent the rest of the day there. Finally, we went back to the hotel.

Reported speech – Statements

In reported speech, when the reporting verb (say, tell) is in the past, the tense of the other verb usually changes going one tense 'back'.

Direct speech tenses	Reported speech tenses
'I work at home.' present simple	She said she worked at home. past simple
'I'm working.' present continuous	She said she was working. past continuous
'I have worked.' present perfect	She said she had worked. past perfect
'I worked.' past simple	She said she had worked. past perfect
'I had worked.' past perfect	She said she had worked. past perfect
'I will work.' will	She said she would work. would
'I can work.' can	She said she could work. could
'I may work.' may	She said she might work. might
'I must/have to work.' must/have to	She said she had to work. had to

Could, would, should and might do not change.

'You should see his new exhibition.' → He said I should see his new exhibition.

When the reporting verb is in the present simple, the tense of the verb in reported speech can stay the same.

'I enjoy woodwork.' → He says he enjoys woodwork.

When the reporting verb is in the past but the statement is something which is still true, or is and will always be true, the tense of the verb in reported speech usually stays the same.

'Museums are usually free.' → The guide told us that museums are usually free.

In reported speech, pronouns and possessive adjectives also change. 'I've got your pen.' → Mark said he had my pen.

We use reported speech to report the words spoken by another person.

'I designed that building in 1990,' said the architect.
The architect said that he had designed that building in 1990.

Reported speech – say and tell

With say you do not need to use a personal object.

He said he needed help. He said the teacher he needed help.

With tell you must use a personal object.

He told the teacher he needed help. He told he needed help.

Reported speech – Questions

We do not use the auxiliary verb do in reported questions.

'Do you know my sister?' → She asked me if I knew her sister.

There is no inversion of subject and verb in reported questions.

'Who are you?' → He asked me who I was.

Reported questions are not real questions so they do not need question marks. She asked me what I needed?

When there is no question word (who, what, how, why, etc.), we use if or whether. 'Can you do it?' → They asked me if I could do it.

Reported speech – Commands

Direct Speech	Reported Speech
'Stand up!'	She told them to stand up .
'Don't write on the table!'	They told him not to write on the table.
'Please write your name here.'	He asked me to write my name there.

For reported commands we use to + infinitive or not to + infinitive.

If necessary we change pronouns and other words in the same way as in reported statements.

We use told to report stronger commands and asked for more polite requests.

▶ Speaking

▶ Tip for Speaking Exams

In activities where you have to report a past event, remember ...

Before the exam, make sure you know as many regular and irregular past forms and tenses as possible. Revise words and expressions to explain the order of events – First; Then; Next; In the end.

EXAM SUCCESS ▶ page 75

1 Look at the three sentences. Which tense is used in each one and why?

- 1 We were all waiting for the start of the match.
- 2 They had already won the match.
- 3 We put our trainers on and went outside.

2 Write down a list of short sentences saying what you did this morning. Write them in the order you did them.

I woke up.

I got out of bed.

I went to the bathroom.

3 Work with a partner. Tell your partner what you did this morning. Introduce each sentence with a different word or expression to explain the sequence.

First I woke up. Then I got out of bed.

A few seconds later I went to the bathroom.

4 Look at the task and, individually, prepare what you are going to say.

Tell an English-speaking friend about a sports event that you took part in or watched and that was special to you. Say:

- what the event was
- where and when the event took place
- what happened first
- what happened in the end
- why it was special.

5 Work with a partner. Take it in turns to do the task.

▶ Listening

▶ Tip for Listening Exams

In true/false activities, remember ...

Do not panic if you do not understand information the first time. If you don't hear the answer to one question, start listening immediately for the answer to the next question. Use the second listening to find the answers you didn't hear the first time.

- 2 Work with a partner. Talk about the United Kingdom using the words from 1.

I know that the capital city is London.

I'm not sure who the prime minister is.

State and politics

- 3 Match these types of government with the explanations below.

constitutional monarchy democracy monarchy republic

- 1 A country that is ruled by a president or other leader, not by a king or queen.
- 2 A system of government where people vote in elections to choose the people who will govern them.
- 3 A type of government where a country is ruled by a king or queen.
- 4 A country ruled by a king or queen whose powers are limited by a set of basic laws.

- 4 Work with a partner. Can you think of a country, in the past or present, for each type of government?
- 5 Read the text about the United Kingdom. Match the underlined words with the definitions 1–9.

The United Kingdom is a constitutional monarchy. The head of state is the King or Queen but power is in the hands of the Prime Minister. The Prime Minister is the leader of the political party which wins the general elections. They have general elections at least every five years. You have to be 18 to vote in a general election.

The three biggest political parties are the Labour Party (traditionally left-wing), the Conservative Party (traditionally right-wing), and the Liberal Democrat Party (traditionally more or less in the centre). In fact, nowadays the distinction between the three parties is not always so clear. The Prime Minister has approximately 22 senior ministers who help him or her to run the country. For example, there are ministers for Health, Justice and Foreign Affairs. The United Kingdom is a member of the European Union and the United Nations.

- 1 Occasions when you can vote for a government: general elections
- 2 With socialist ideas and objectives: left-wing
- 3 A part of an organisation or group: member
- 4 A group of people with similar ideas about politics: political party
- 5 With conservative ideas or objectives: right-wing
- 6 Not socialist or conservative: in the centre
- 7 Control, organise: run
- 8 Things which happen in other countries: foreign affairs
- 9 People in control of government departments: ministers

- 4- Constitutional monarchy – The United Kingdom.

- 1 Work with a partner. Look at the pictures. Do the two men look similar? What do you think is the relationship between them? You probably don't know, so just guess. Look at the title and description of the second man. Is there anything strange about them? What do you think is the explanation?

Charles Albert of Savoy

Victor Emmanuel II, the first king of Italy

- 2 Read the first paragraph of the text and answer these questions.

- 1 Who was Victor Emmanuel?
- 2 What are the two mysteries about him?

Now read the rest of the text.

- 3 SPEAKING Work in groups and discuss the questions.

- 1 What is the answer to the 'mystery' of Victor Emmanuel's title? Was your guess right?
- 2 Why do you think people might have started the stories about his origins?
- 3 Do you think there is enough evidence for the stories to be true?

- 4 Read the last part of the text below. Does the writer believe that Victor Emmanuel was really a butcher's son?

So, what is the truth of the story? Certainly, no one has explained the differences in time during the month after the fire, but the death of the nurse just after she was supposed to be getting better is surely not so strange or difficult to explain. It's also not unusual for two brothers to be quite different from each other. In political life, most people have enemies, and it isn't hard to imagine people having reasons to spread stories like this. Above all, people seem to enjoy hearing stories that suggest that accepted facts and official explanations are not true. Perhaps US President John Kennedy was not killed by one man acting alone. Maybe astronauts didn't really land on the moon in the 1960s. There are hundreds of stories like this, known as 'conspiracy theories', and many people believe in them.

First king or butcher's son?

Victor Emmanuel II, who lived from 1820 to 1878, was the first king of Italy and is still referred to by some Italians as 'the father of the fatherland'. You may immediately think there is something a little mysterious in his title: why would he be called Victor Emmanuel the second if he was the first king? Yet that is not the greatest mystery about him, according to some people. Even when he was only a baby, rumours began to circulate about him, suggesting that he was not really the son of Charles Albert, prince of the House of Savoy (an old aristocratic family), but that his true father was a butcher.

In September 1822, while Prince Charles Albert and his family were staying at a villa near the city of Florence, a fire started in the bedroom of the Prince's two-year-old son. The accident was caused by the boy's nurse, Teresa, whose dress touched a candle and caught fire. In her efforts to save the boy, she suffered serious burns. Official documents recorded the incident on 16th September, and said that four days later the family returned to Florence, but there are no reports of Charles Albert appearing in public until 10th October. On 3rd October, however, a family servant wrote in a letter that the nurse was expected to recover from her injuries and would be returning to Florence with the royal family the day after. Two days after that, Teresa died. This, together with the unexplained difference in the date of the family's return, was enough for some people to start thinking something mysterious had happened.

The stories soon began. Charles Albert's real son, they said, had died in the fire, and another boy, the son of a butcher called Gaetano Tiburzi, had been substituted for him. Tiburzi had a large three-storey house, and soon after the incident had a new house built for him. By the time he died, he was the owner of 43 houses which he rented to others, and was far richer than any ordinary butcher could expect to be. Had he 'sold' his son to Charles Albert, and was he being paid for his silence?

As Victor Emmanuel grew up, there were other reasons for suspicion. His younger brother Ferdinand, who was born after the fire, was quiet, sensitive and obedient – very similar, in fact, to his father. He was also not a very healthy child. Young Victor Emmanuel, though, was the complete opposite: strong, lively and not interested in studying. People sometimes remarked that he did not look or act like someone of royal blood.

Whatever his origins were, though, there is no doubt that he was a successful military leader and politician. Allying himself with the nationalist leader Garibaldi, and with the help of his advisor Cavour, he established the first Italian state, with himself as king. Some of his supporters were disappointed that he chose to be called Victor Emmanuel II (of Savoy) instead of taking the title Victor Emmanuel I (of Italy).

- 5 Read the text again and answer these questions.

- 1 What caused the fire at the villa?
- 2 What happened to the nurse?
- 3 How were the servant's letter and official documents different?
- 4 How was Gaetano Tiburzi different from most butchers?
- 5 What was Victor Emmanuel's character like?
- 6 Which achievement of Victor Emmanuel is mentioned?

- 6 Match the underlined words in the text with the definitions.

- 1 something that happened
- 2 belief that something is wrong
- 3 stories that may or may not be true
- 4 pass from person to person
- 5 put in place of
- 6 started or brought into existence

1- Victor Emmanuel II, who lived from 1820 to 1878, was the first king of Italy.

2- One mystery is that he was called Victor Emmanuel the second even though he was the first king. The other is that some people think he was the son of a butcher, not a real prince.

3)

1- When he became king of Italy, he chose to be called Victor Emmanuel II (of Savoy) instead of taking the title Victor Emmanuel I (of Italy).

2- Most leaders at that time had enemies, so perhaps it was some of his political enemies who wanted to make people question whether he should really be king.

3- There is some evidence but I don't think there's enough to prove the story. There might be other explanations.

4)

No, the writer strongly suggests that the story is not true, and is one of many similar 'conspiracy theories'.

5)

- 1- It was an accident caused when the nurse's dress touched a candle flame and caught fire.
- 2- She was badly burnt and later died.
- 3- The servant's letter said the family would go home on the 4th of October, while the official document said they had returned on the 20th of September.
- 4- By the time of his death he owned a lot of houses and was much richer than an ordinary butcher.
- 5- He was lively and not interested in studying. He did not act like someone of royal blood.
- 6- He established the first Italian state and became the first king of Italy.

6)

- 1- incident.
- 2- suspicion.
- 3- rumours.
- 4- spread.
- 5- substituted for.
- 6- established.

3 Read the text and choose the correct alternative.

In 1859, a British farmer called Thomas Austin wanted to organise a rabbit hunt on his land in Australia. Because rabbits didn't exist in Australia, he asked his nephew to send him 24 grey rabbits from England. But the rabbits quickly multiplied and by 1866 thousands of rabbits were living on Austin's land. By the 1940s, hundreds of millions of rabbits had spread across Australia. The environment in Australia was perfect for rabbits and they had no natural predators there. The rabbits destroyed over 1.5 million square miles of land and reduced the amount of food available to other animals. In the 1950s, they released myxomatosis to reduce the number of rabbits. It killed 99% of the rabbit population in Australia, but the other 1% have continued reproducing and are still a problem today.

- 1 if rabbits had existed/exist in Australia, Austin wouldn't has/have asked his nephew to send them.
- 2 if the environment in Australia hadn't be/been so good for the rabbits, the rabbit population wouldn't/hadn't have increased so quickly.
- 3 if there had/have been natural predators in Australia, they would/had have killed the rabbits.
- 4 if the rabbits haven't/hadn't destroyed so much land, they would/wouldn't have reduced the amount of food available to other animals.
- 5 if they hadn't release/released myxomatosis, the problem would have been/being much worse.
- 6 if they killed/had killed 100% of the rabbits in the 1950s, the problem would have/had stopped.

1 Read the story about a bad day and answer the questions.

- 2 Who are the characters in the story?
- 3 Why was the day so bad for the person telling the story?

My Bad Day

If I'd known it was going to be such a bad day, I probably would have stayed in bed. It was the last day of the summer holidays. My friends and I had decided to spend our last day of freedom at a new indoor ski slope before school started again.

My friends were both really good at skiing because they used to go to the mountains when they were small. I'd only been once or twice. I wasn't very good but I really enjoyed it.

When we arrived at the indoor ski slope, the sun was shining so it was strange to go inside with all the snow and ice. First, we went to hire boots and skis and then we got changed. When we were all ready, we went onto the snow.

After an hour, I was really enjoying myself. I hadn't fallen once and I was starting to ski quite well. That was when it all went wrong. I was skiing down the slope fast when suddenly a man came out of nowhere just in front of me. I couldn't change direction and I hit him and went flying through the air. When I came back down, my knee smacked into the ice. I knew straight away that I must have done something serious. They carried me down and told me to go to hospital.

Later, when we arrived at my local hospital, all the nurses were laughing at me. They couldn't understand how anybody could have had a skiing accident in the summer. I wasn't laughing when, finally, they told me that I needed an operation on my knee. I wish I'd just stayed in bed!

I am not a very forgetful person, but that day I forgot everything. I left the house without my keys, forgot to pack the correct books, left my lunch at home and, worst of all, forgot to take waterproof clothes for going on my bike.

After school, I had to go to my dad's office to pick up the front door keys. I had forgotten my key for the bike padlock as well, so I left it standing outside.

When I walked into the office, everyone looked at me. I was very wet from the rain. Dad was angry because I had forgotten my rainproof jacket. I was looking out the window when I saw a man taking my bike. I ran out of the office very fast but I slipped on the stairs. I knew straight away that I must have done something serious.

One hour later, I was in the hospital! I had broken my arm and hand. I was crying because my bike had been stolen too! I wish I'd just stayed in bed!

We use must when we are 90% certain that something is true.
We use may, might, could, may not, mightn't when there is a 50% possibility that something is true (or not).
We use can't when we are 90% certain that something is not true.
When we are 100% certain that something is or isn't true, we do not use modal verbs of speculation and deduction.
I know she's good at maths.

Modal verbs of speculation and deduction – Past

Form

She must have done well in her last exam because she was really happy afterwards.
She may have passed her exam but I don't really know.
She might have failed her exam but I don't really know.
She may not have had time to finish the exam but I don't really know.
She mightn't (might not) have known the answers but I don't really know.
She could have copied in the exam but I don't really know.
She can't have passed her exam because she was really sad afterwards.
She couldn't have done well in her exam because she was really sad afterwards.
To make sentences in the past using modal verbs we use this form:
must/may/might/could/can't/couldn't + have + past participle

Use

We use must have when we are 90% certain that something was true.
We use may have, might have, could have, may not have, mightn't have when there is a 50% possibility that something was true (or not).
We use can't have, couldn't have when we are 90% certain that something was not true.
When we are 100% certain that something was or wasn't true, we do not use modal verbs of speculation and deduction.
She didn't pass her exam.

Third conditional

Form

If + past perfect, ... would/wouldn't have + past participle

If I had seen him, I'd have spoken to him.
If we hadn't studied, we wouldn't have passed our exams.

The part of the sentence with if can go at the start of the sentence or at the end. There is no difference in meaning. However, if the part with if goes at the start of the sentence we must use a comma before the second half of the sentence.

If we had had more free time, we would have done more sport.
We'd have done more sport if we'd had more free time.

Use

We use the third conditional to talk about imaginary or impossible situations in the past and their consequences. The situations are impossible because we cannot change them now that they have happened.
If I had lost my wallet last night (imaginary past situation – it didn't happen), I would have been very unhappy. (the consequence of this situation)

- The other day I was in my local supermarket, pushing the (a) trolley and filling it with food for the week. I was bored with looking at the food, so I went to the electrical goods section and looked at the digital cameras they had on the (b) shelves. I saw that there was a 50% (c) discount on quite a new model. It was a real (d) bargain so I bought it. There was a really long (e) queue with people waiting to pay at the (f) checkout. That was because the (g) cashier (a young man who was new, I think) was really slow. Anyway, I didn't have any money with me so when it was finally my turn, I paid for everything with my (h) debit card. When I got home, I tried taking a photo indoors but nothing happened. The flash wasn't working. I went straight back to the supermarket with the camera and asked for a (i) refund. I wanted my money back, obviously. They asked if I'd paid by (j) cash and I told them I hadn't. I had to show them my card to get my money back. But then they asked me for the (k) receipt too, to show them that I'd bought it at that shop. I didn't have it. I'd thrown it away.

- 5 SPEAKING Work with a partner. Discuss the questions.

- 1 Do you enjoy going shopping? How often do you go?
- 2 Who do you usually go shopping with?
- 3 Which type of shops do you like or hate? Why?
- 4 Which is your favourite shop and why?

The answers:

1)

- a- Greengrocer's: you can buy fruit and vegetables.
- b- Stationery shop: you can buy paper, pens, cards, office supplies.
- c- Jeweller's: you can buy jewellery such as bracelets, earrings, rings, necklaces etc.
- d- Bank: you can deposit and take out money, open/close an account, pay bills, change money etc.
- e- Sports shop: you can buy sports clothing and shoes, accessories and equipment for different sports.

5)

- 1- I really enjoy shopping. I go shopping every week, usually on Saturdays.
- 2- I usually go shopping with my sister.
- 3- I like clothes and shoe shops, because I like looking at the fashions. I don't like department stores because they're too big.
- 4- My favourite shop is a little clothes shop near to our house. It has really cool designs and it isn't expensive.

1 Read the text and think of a good title. Be prepared to explain your title.

Title: Grabbing Customers by the Nose

The next time you're in a shop or department store and you suddenly feel a strong need to get out your cash or debit card and buy something you can't really afford, stop and smell the air. It may be that you are under the influence of 'scent marketing'. Scent marketing is the use of fragrances, perfumes and smells to make you want to buy something.

1 h
For a long time, many estate agents in the USA have used a special trick when they show people around a house or flat that they want to sell or let. Before the customers arrive, they make or bring freshly made cookies or bread. Straight away this makes the house seem more like a real home. It makes no difference if the flat is empty and unfurnished. The smell immediately brings to mind memories of childhood, happiness, safety and comfort.

2 b
Of the five senses, smell is perhaps the most emotional and the one which can instantaneously bring back many memories. Supermarkets have also known about the power of scent for some time. Traditionally, they have used the smell of freshly baked bread to attract customers. Often the smell is sent through the air conditioning so that the whole supermarket smells like a good old traditional bakery. And anybody who walks past the entrance and smells warm bread will naturally want to go in. Once they're in, they find a trolley and fill it up.

3 f
Some clothes shops have discovered that they can double their sales with women shoppers when they spray soft, 'feminine' fragrances such as vanilla. The same thing happens with men when they use more 'masculine' scents.

4 g
They must design scents with the perfect balance. For example, experiments have shown that most men won't stay for long in a shop where the smell is too feminine. Meanwhile, some companies are taking these ideas further. Sony, for example, is experimenting with electrical goods. They are trying to add fragrances to the hard plastics that they use to make their gadgets.

5 e
The interesting thing here is that nobody wants to give details about what scents they are using in their shops or in their goods. The experts and professionals prefer the smells to remain mysterious and to influence us subconsciously.

6 a
In California, the Milk Processor Board started an advertising campaign in the streets using scent marketing. They had milk adverts at bus stops, and the adverts smelled, once again, of freshly made chocolate chip cookies.

7 c
However, after a short time, the local authorities made the Milk Board remove all the adverts. They didn't think it was fair to force everybody at a bus stop to smell cookies. And, meanwhile, some members of the public had protested because of the possibility of allergic reactions. On the evidence of the California milk advert, it's going to be a long time before scent adverts are everywhere. But try to remember – before you waste your money buying things you don't really want, be sure your nose knows what it's doing.

▶ EXAM SUCCESS

The next exercise is a typical task that can appear in English reading exams. Do you know what type of tasks will appear in your next exam? EXAM SUCCESS ▶ page 76

2 Read the article again and complete the text by putting sentences a–h into gaps 1–7 in the text. There is one sentence you do not need.

- a But not everybody is happy about scent marketing, as this American experiment shows us.
- b One reason why scent marketing is so powerful is precisely because of this.
- c The idea, of course, was to make the public think of buying milk to go with their cookies.
- d That's why many people think scent marketing can be dangerous in some circumstances.
- e In this way, the product itself will have such an attractive smell that shoppers will want to buy it.
- f Nowadays, however, scent marketing can happen anywhere, not just in a house or a supermarket.
- g Here it is important for professional scent companies to get it just right.
- h Scent marketing is not particularly new.

3 Complete the sentences in your own words but using information from the text.

- 1 Scent marketing is the use of smell to make you want to buy something.
- 2 Scent marketing is very effective because smell is a very powerful sense that affects your emotions.
- 3 Experts have to get the scents just right because they must encourage people to stay a long time and buy.
- 4 Experts don't want us to know the ingredients of their scents because they prefer the smell to remain a secret that influences us without us realising.
- 5 The milk advert in California wasn't a success because the local authorities thought it wasn't fair that everybody had to smell cookies and the public thought it could cause allergic reactions.

4 Match the words in the text with these definitions.

- 1 rent a flat, house or room to somebody let
- 2 take away remove
- 3 with no furniture unfurnished
- 4 immediately instantaneously
- 5 people who help you to buy and sell a house or flat estate agents
- 6 push liquid out of a container through a small hole into the air spray
- 7 without people realising or knowing subconsciously

5 SPEAKING What about you?

- 1 What's your opinion of scent marketing?
- 2 What are your favourite fragrances or smells?

GRAMMAR GUIDE

Indeterminate pronouns: some-, any-, no-, every-

1a Look at the sentences.

- 1 You suddenly feel a strong need to buy something.
- 2 There isn't anyone in the shop.
- 3 Is there anything interesting in that shop?
- 4 Anybody who walks past the entrance smells warm bread.
- 5 Nobody wants to give details about what scents they are using.
- 6 Everybody likes cookies.
- 7 Scent marketing can happen anywhere.
- 8 These adverts aren't everywhere yet.

1b Now match the sentence halves to make rules.

- 1 We use pronouns with some c
 - 2 We use pronouns with any a
 - 3 We use pronouns with no b
 - 4 We use pronouns with every d
- a in negative sentences, questions, and in affirmative sentences when it means it doesn't matter who, what, where.
- b with affirmative verbs because the meaning of the pronouns is already negative.
- c in affirmative sentences and in offers and requests.
- d in all types of sentences and in questions.

1c Complete the table.

some-	any-	no-	every-
something	anything	nothing	everything
somebody/ someone	anybody/ anyone	nobody/ no-one	everybody/ everyone
somewhere	anywhere	nowhere	everywhere

2 Choose the correct alternative.

- 1 I've finished my homework. I've done anything/everything.
- 2 Who's upstairs? I can hear somebody/anybody.
- 3 Where are my keys? I can't find them somewhere/anywhere.
- 4 The teacher's really angry. No-one/Anyone knows the answer.
- 5 Why are you so serious? Is nothing/anything wrong?
- 6 The celebration is a real success. Everybody/Anybody is having a great time.
- 7 I don't really want to go to that restaurant tomorrow. I want to go somewhere/anywhere different.
- 8 That's strange. There isn't nobody/anybody here.
- 9 I think I know that man! There's something/anything about him that is really familiar.
- 10 Excuse me everyone/no-one! Does anyone/everybody know why all the computers have crashed?

3 Complete the dialogue with the indeterminate pronouns in 1c.

COUN: Would you like to go out (a) somewhere this evening?

HARRY: OK, but where?

COUN: (b) Anywhere. I don't mind. I just want to go out.

HARRY: Well, how about going to the shopping centre? I have to buy (c) something for my brother as a present for his graduation.

COUN: What are you going to buy him?

HARRY: Maybe clothes. He's going out with his school friends to celebrate next week and he says he hasn't got (d) anything to wear. Actually he's got lots of clothes but he says (e) everything is too old. It's annoying because he never has enough and it seems as if (f) nothing ever satisfies him.

COUN: Hmm. Perhaps (g) somebody should tell him how lucky he is.

HARRY: The problem is that he never listens to (h) anyone...

4a SPEAKING Complete the questions with anybody, anywhere or anything.

- 1 If you could go anywhere in the world for your holidays, where would you go?
- 2 If you could have anything you liked, what would you ask for?
- 3 If you could meet anybody in the world, who would you meet?
- 4 If you could be anybody in the world apart from yourself, who would you be?
- 5 If you could live anywhere in the world, where would you live?

CUSTOMER: Well, I bought this hoodie here last week as a present for a friend.
SHOP ASSISTANT: Oh, didn't he like it? He can choose another one if he wants.
CUSTOMER: No, that's not the problem. He liked it but it shrank the first time he washed it. It was a large but now it's more like a small.
SHOP ASSISTANT: Oh dear. I am sorry. We haven't had anybody else with that problem. Are you sure he followed the washing instructions?
CUSTOMER: Yes!
SHOP ASSISTANT: I see. Well, we can either replace it for you straight away or we could give you a refund. Which would you prefer?
CUSTOMER: I'll take the refund.
SHOP ASSISTANT: Fine. Have you got the receipt?
CUSTOMER: Yes, here it is.
SHOP ASSISTANT: Thank you. 200 SAR. There you are. Sorry about that.

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing to complain about the goods and service in your store.

On 16th March I bought an MP3 player at your store in City Mall. When I arrived home, I removed the MP3 player from its box and discovered that it did not work. As a result, I took it back to the store the following day. However, the shop assistant told me that I could only have a refund if I returned the MP3 player in its original box.

The next day I went back again with the MP3 player in its original packaging. This time a new shop assistant told me that I could not have a refund, only a replacement. When I told him what his colleague had said the day before, he accused me of lying.

In the end, I left the store with a replacement MP3 player but I once again discovered that it was faulty. I will not go back to the store since your shop assistants are so rude. I demand a full refund immediately. Furthermore, I would like an apology from the shop assistant who treated me so badly. If I do not hear from you in the next two weeks, I will take my complaint to a Consumer Advice Centre.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Yours faithfully,

Sharif Firas

Indeterminate pronouns: some-, any-, no-, every-

Form

some-	any-	no-	every-
something	anything	nothing	everything
somebody/ someone	anybody/ anyone	nobody/ no-one	everybody/ everyone
somewhere	anywhere	nowhere	everywhere

Use

We use -thing for objects, -body and -one for people, and -where for places.

We use pronouns with some- in affirmative sentences and in offers and requests.

Somebody is in the living room.

Would you like something to eat?

We use pronouns with any- in negative sentences, questions, and in affirmative sentences when it means it doesn't matter who, what, where.

I haven't got anything to wear.

Is there anybody there?

This is easy. Anybody can do it.

We use pronouns with no- with affirmative verbs because the meaning of the pronoun is already negative.

There's nobody here.

Is there nothing I can do?

We use pronouns with every- in all types of sentences and in questions.

I like everything in this restaurant.

You can't be everywhere at the same time.

Has everybody understood?

So and such

Use

We use so to intensify the meaning of adjectives and adverbs.

It's so hot.

She writes so well.

We use such to intensify the meaning of nouns, with or without adjectives. We use a/an after such when we continue with a singular countable noun, but not with uncountable or plural nouns.

It's such a hot day.

It's such a pity.

He writes such beautiful poems.

This is such good bread.

After sentences with so or such we can continue the sentence with that.

It's so hot that I can't concentrate.

I wish and If only

Use

We use I wish/if only + the past to talk about imaginary situations in the present. It expresses wishes for things to be different in the present.

I wish I was on a desert island right now.

If only I had a million dollars.

We use I wish/if only + the past perfect to talk about past situations that we regret or would like to be different.

I wish I had listened to the teacher last year.

If only I hadn't shouted at Laith.

We use I wish/if only with would/wouldn't + infinitive to talk about somebody's habitual behaviour that we want to criticise and change.

My friend lies a lot. I wish he wouldn't do it.

I wish you would listen to me.

The mystery of the 'dead' canoeist

22nd March 2002: Pieces of a canoe were found on a beach in Seaton Carew, near the city of Hartlepool in north-east England. The canoe belonged to 51-year-old John Darwin, who was married with two children. Somebody said they had seen Darwin enter the sea with his canoe at 8 or 9am the day before. It was only later in the evening, when he did not arrive for work, that a colleague reported his disappearance. An expensive rescue operation began. Five boats, two rescue teams and a plane were used to try and find Darwin's body, but without any success. Experts concluded that he must have died at sea. Six months after her husband's disappearance, Darwin's wife, Anne, told reporters how difficult it was to live in limbo, without finding her husband's dead body.

1st December 2007: Five years later, John Darwin walked into a police station in London and told the police 'I think I'm a missing person.' He gave the police officers his name, date of birth and details of his wife and two sons, but said that he was suffering from amnesia. Darwin was reunited with his two sons but his wife was not there because she had moved to Panama a year before. The police admitted that they had no idea what might have happened during those five years but said that they would interview him and make a full investigation.

5th December 2007: John Darwin was arrested by the police. In the following weeks, an incredible story came to light. The police were helped by a member of the public who found an interesting photo on the Internet and sent it to a British newspaper. The photo was of John Darwin on holiday in Panama with his wife Anne. They were both happy and smiling, but the photo was taken four years after Darwin's 'death'. After a long investigation, the police said that Anne had known about her husband's plan right from the start. On the day of the disappearance, she had even driven him to the local train station so that he could disappear. Afterwards, John had lived in a secret room in the family's house for three years. He had grown a long beard and always entered the house through a secret door. But, during all this time, John and Anne's sons had no idea what was going on. The couple had planned the whole thing to get insurance money. John had had financial problems and pretended to die so that his wife got thousands of pounds from his insurance policy. With this money they were planning to buy land in Panama and set up a holiday resort. So why did John Darwin go to the police station in London when their plan was working so well? Some people thought he might have had an argument with Anne. Others say that he must have wanted to see his sons again after so many years. But the police think that it was because his false passport was about to expire. He needed to come back to the UK to get a new, real passport. Darwin thought that the police would believe his story about suffering amnesia. But they didn't, and now John and Anne have to spend more than six years in prison.

You can do so many different things, like meeting friends or going to a restaurant.

Unit 1

▶ READING: General and specific information

- The first time you read a text, read it quickly. Do not stop if there are words you do not understand. Just try to understand the general meaning. To help, give yourself a time limit the first time you read. It can help you to get a general understanding and not look at details. The first task will usually help you to do this.
- The next task usually checks that you understand specific information. When you read for specific information, read the question carefully and then find the exact place where you think the answer comes from. Read this section again in more detail.

▶ SPEAKING: Spoken and written language

- Spoken language is different from written language. With writing we have more time to plan and prepare what we want to say. We have to be more precise because we cannot see or speak to the person we are writing to. If they do not understand us, we cannot help them.
- When we speak we have less time to prepare and so we sometimes make mistakes. Sometimes we begin a sentence, stop and change or clarify what we are saying. We use expressions like mmm, err, erm, the thing is, what I mean is. We use these expressions to give us time to think of what we want to say. Normally, we repeat ourselves more in speaking than in writing.
- When we speak in English we should not worry excessively about making mistakes. We can go back and correct ourselves or clarify what we mean. We should use fillers because they give us thinking-time. We should not worry about repeating ourselves occasionally. All these things are normal elements of speaking, if we are native or non-native speakers.

Unit 2

▶ SPEAKING: Accuracy and fluency

When we talk about speaking, we often use the terms accuracy and fluency.

- Accuracy is used to talk about how correct our use of grammar is when we speak. If we speak quickly in English but we make lots and lots of mistakes it will be difficult for people to understand us.
- Fluency is used to talk about how continuously we can speak without stopping to think about what we want to say next. If our use of grammar is perfect but we have to stop frequently to think of what we want to say, then people will get tired of listening to us.
- To speak English well we need to have a balance between accuracy and fluency. To do this we need to practise speaking as much as possible and try to correct any frequent mistakes.

▶ WRITING: Paragraphs

- A paragraph is made up of several sentences which are grouped together. They are grouped together because they talk about, and develop, one main topic.
- Paragraphs help to make your writing more organised and structured. This makes your writing easier to understand. When there are no paragraphs, writing can become confusing and repetitive.
- When you have brainstormed the content of what you are going to write, stop and organise the content into logical paragraphs. You should do this before you start to write, not while you are writing.

Unit 3

▶ PRONUNCIATION: The importance of word stress

- Our main objective when we work on pronunciation is that other people can understand us easily.
- Word stress is an important factor because people usually find it very difficult to understand the word when the stress is not in the correct place.
- Sometimes, word stress changes a word completely e.g. désert – dessért, refúse (= say no) – réfúse (= rubbish).
- In English, we do not use accents to show the stress. However, in your vocabulary list/notebook, you can mark the stress to remember where it comes (e.g. basketball).
- In dictionaries word stress is usually marked like this:

basketball /'bæskɪt,bɒl/ noun 1 (V) a game played by two teams of five players who get points by throwing a ball through a net 2 (C) the ball used in the game of basketball

▶ GRAMMAR: Learning from your mistakes

Mistakes are a natural part of learning but we must work constructively on the mistakes we make in order to improve. Here are some suggestions:

- When you make a lot of mistakes with a structure, check to see if the mistakes are generally with the form, spelling or meaning of the new structure. Find out exactly what the problem is.
- If you don't understand something, ask your teacher for help, use your notes or use the Grammar Reference section in this book.
- When you think you understand better, look for more exercises in your Workbook.

Unit 4

▶ READING: Deducing the meaning of new words

- In reading exams you cannot usually use dictionaries. When there are new words in a text, you can often find out something about the words by looking at the context.
- Look at the words that come just before or after. They will probably tell you if the word is a noun, verb, adjective, etc.
- By looking at the words and sentences around the new word, you can probably deduce something about the meaning (e.g. if it is a positive thing or a negative thing, if it is a word connected with a particular topic, etc.)
- Sometimes, you may not understand the exact meaning, but the context often gives you at least an approximate idea.
- Another strategy is to look for any prefixes or suffixes. Prefixes can help you guess the meaning of the word (e.g. re tells you it is doing an activity again). Suffixes can tell you the type of word (e.g. a word ending in -ion will be a noun).
- Is the word a compound (a word made up of two or more words)? If it is, do you know the meaning of one of the words?
- Look at the word and think if there is a similar word in your language.

▶ LISTENING: Staying calm and positive

- When you are listening to English and there is a section you do not understand, stay positive. If you stop listening or if you get nervous and panic, you won't understand anything more.
- Remember that, usually, it is not necessary to understand every word in order to do a task well. When you get lost, look at the next question or two and listen out for words or ideas associated with the question(s).
- Usually in exams you can listen to the text twice. If there are things you do not understand the first time, stay calm and listen for them in the second listening.

Unit 5

▶ VOCABULARY: Remembering words

Our memory usually works better if:

- we remember words in groups.
- we use or revise them frequently.
- we use them in a personal context – spoken or written.
- words look or sound similar to other words.
- the words are unusual for some reason.
- we are interested in the topic that the words are connected to.

Remember to:

- write down new words in groups.
- revise frequently.
- use the new words when you speak or write.

▶ SPEAKING: Thinking of what to say

If it's your turn to speak and you can't think of what to say, use this advice:

- Use fillers to give yourself time to think of what you are going to say next (e.g. Er, The thing is, Well, You know...).
- Use language of speculation (It might be, I'm not sure, I think, etc.)
- Use the questions What? Who? Where? Why? When? etc. to think of ideas for something to say.
- If you are worried because you don't know a word, think of similar words, more basic or general words, or explain the word.

Unit 6

▶ Reflection and forward-planning

At the end of the year, it is useful to reflect on what you have studied, learnt and practised during the year. Identify the things that you can now do very well, quite well, or not very well. Decide how you can work in the future on the things you don't know or can't do very well. Think of people or materials that can help. Make a plan of action for the holidays or next year.

▶ WRITING: Improving your writing

Here are some ways that you can improve your writing:

- Make a note of your mistakes when you get corrected essays or reports back from your teacher. Look at these notes just before you write your next essay or report.
- Always have a plan before you write. Know what you are going to write before you start.
- Remember to group ideas into paragraphs.
- If you aren't sure how to write something, simplify it. Clarity is one of the most important criteria when writing.
- Make sure you know what style (e.g. formal, informal) you should be using.
- Use appropriate tenses.
- Check your writing carefully when you finish. Have you answered the question? Are there any obvious mistakes? Have you made any basic spelling mistakes? Is it easy to understand the ideas and information in your text? Is your handwriting clear?
- Remember – practice makes perfect!

Unit 1

▶ USE OF ENGLISH: Cloze activities

In this type of activity, you have a text with gaps. You must fill each gap by thinking of a word which is grammatically correct and is logical.

- Step 1: Read the complete text without thinking about the gaps. This is to get a general understanding of the text.
- Step 2: Look again at the gaps and especially the words which come just before and after the gap. Do those words need a special preposition? Is an article or auxiliary verb missing? Think about the type of word missing (noun, verb, pronoun, article, etc.) and the general meaning. The missing words in cloze activities will often be prepositions, articles, pronouns, auxiliary verbs, modal verbs, and conjunctions (and, but, although, etc.).
- Step 3: Fill in the gap with the word that you think is best. Read the sentence again with your answer in the gap. Sometimes there is more than one possible answer but you only need to put one.
- Step 4: When you finish, check that you have one answer for each question. Never leave answers blank in an exam.

▶ WRITING: Following the instructions

In writing exams, you must be careful to answer the question and follow the instructions exactly. Before you start writing, check that you know the answers to these questions:

- Who are you writing to or for?
- Is there a word limit? In some exams you may get no marks if you write too many words or not enough words.
- Do you know what information is relevant to include? For example, if you write about the plot of a film, but not your opinion, this is not a film review.
- Is there a paragraph plan to follow? Do you have to write a specific number of paragraphs? Do you have to begin or finish your composition in a specific way?

Unit 2

▶ READING: Matching

In this type of activity, you have to say which text or part of a text contains a piece of information.

- Step 1: Read all the texts or parts of the text quickly to get a general understanding.
- Step 2: Read the piece(s) of information that you need to find. Are there any special words that help you to find the text or part of the text which contains the information? Remember that, in the text, the same information will probably be expressed in different words.
- Step 3: Read the specific text or part of the text where you think the information comes from again in more detail.
- Step 4: If you are not sure that you have found the correct answer, read other sections again in more detail.
- Step 5: When you finish, check that you have an answer for each question. Never leave answers blank in an exam.

▶ LISTENING: Multiple-choice

In this type of activity, you choose the best answer from three or four different answers.

You usually hear the text twice. The questions are usually in the order that you hear them in the recording.

- Step 1: Read the different answers before you listen. They can give you ideas about the topic of the text and the vocabulary you are going to hear in it. Remember that, sometimes, the difference between two answers is just one word.
- Step 2: When you listen, remember that you may hear the correct answer but expressed in different words. You may also hear a word or words that come in one of the possible answers, but this does not mean it is the correct answer. The word(s) may be there just to distract you.
- Step 3: You usually hear the recording twice. Do not worry if you do not understand information the first time. If you don't hear the answer to one question, start listening immediately for the answer to the next question.
- Step 4: Use the second listening to find the answers you didn't hear the first time and to check the answers you already have.
- Step 5: When you finish, check that you have an answer for each question. Never leave answers blank in an exam.

Unit 3

▶ LISTENING: True/false

In this type of activity, you have to listen and decide if statements are true or false. You usually hear the text twice. The statements are usually in the order that you hear them in the recording.

- Step 1: Read the answers before you listen. They can give you ideas about the topic of the text and the vocabulary you are going to hear in it.
- Step 2: You can usually hear the recording twice. Do not worry if you do not understand information the first time. If you don't hear the answer to one question, start listening immediately for the answer to the next question.
- Step 3: Use the second listening to find the answers you didn't hear the first time and to check the answers you already have.
- Step 4: When you finish, check that you have an answer for each question. Never leave answers blank in an exam.

▶ SPEAKING: Giving presentations

Look at this advice for giving good presentations:

- Make notes with the information you want to give in your presentation and use them when you are giving it; but don't just read your notes aloud.
- Look at your audience. See if they understand you and are interested.
- Don't speak too fast. If you speak too quickly, people will not be able to follow you.
- Try to speak for exactly the right amount of time. The more you practise, the easier it will become.
- Use intonation to show that you are interested and to make others interested.
- Don't worry excessively about vocabulary. When you don't know a word, explain it or use a simpler word.
- Don't let mistakes stop you from speaking. Correct your own mistakes if possible, or start the sentence again, but don't stop completely.

Unit 4

▶ SPEAKING: Reporting past events

In some speaking exams, you have to talk about something that you did in the past. Before the exam, make sure you know:

- as many regular and irregular past forms as possible.
- when and how to use the past simple, past continuous and past perfect.
- words and expressions to explain the order of events (e.g. First, Then, Next, in the end...).

During the exam, make sure you:

- understand and answer the question the examiner asks you.
- ask the examiner or your partner in English to repeat or to speak more slowly if they say something that you don't understand. Use expressions like: Sorry, can you say that again? or Sorry, could you speak more slowly?
- use fillers like Well, Hmm or Let me think to give you time to think of what you want to say next.
- use basic question words like Who? What? When? Where? How? Why? to help you to think of more things to say.

▶ WRITING:

Thinking about the reader

We write in different ways depending on who and how many people we are writing to. Usually in writing exams, you will get more marks if you write in an appropriate way for the task. Always read the instructions carefully and check that you know exactly who you are writing to. Write in the correct style for that reader. Ask yourself if the person reading will understand it easily. Will they find it interesting, informative, useful or exciting (depending on the task)?

Unit 5

▶ USE OF ENGLISH: Word formation cloze

In this type of activity, you must use the word given in capitals to form a word that fits in the gap. The words can be any type: noun, adjective, adverb, verb, etc.

- Step 1: Read the text once quickly to get a general understanding.
- Step 2: Look at the words just before and after the gap. They can help you to decide what type of word is missing. Usually, to change the type of word, you will need a suffix (e.g. -ion to make a noun, -ly to make an adverb).
- Step 3: Look at the words just before and after the gap and make sure you understand the whole sentence. This will help you to decide if you need to change the meaning of the word (e.g. making it negative). Usually, to change the meaning of the word, you will need a prefix (e.g. im-, re-).
- Step 4: Read the completed sentence and check your answer. Check that you have an answer for each question. Never leave answers blank in an exam.

▶ WRITING: Timing yourself

Some people have a problem finishing on time in writing exams. Follow this advice to stop this problem.

- Make sure you know how many pieces of writing you have to do, and how much time you have to do them.
- Keep looking at the time to check that you are following your schedule.
- Decide if you need, or have time, to write a rough version. Make sure you leave enough time to write up the final version. Don't write the final version so quickly that you make a lot of new mistakes.
- If you don't know how to write something, don't spend a long time thinking about it. Change or simplify what you were going to write.

Unit 6 موقع

▶ GENERAL: Doing well in exams

To do well in English exams, think about these tips.

- Make sure you know what type of tasks and exercises will appear in your exams. If you are familiar with these types of exercises, they will become easier. If you have problems with a type of exercise, practise!
- In grammar and vocabulary exams, make sure you know what topics and grammar are tested so that you study the relevant structures and words.
- You should spend more time practising the things that you find difficult than the things you find easy.
- Revise frequently a long time before the exam. It is very difficult to revise English just before the exam.
- Read the instructions and questions carefully, and make sure you do what they say or ask.
- Write carefully and clearly.
- Don't leave answers blank.
- Check your exam carefully before giving it in.

▶ SPEAKING: Doing well in oral exams

To get a good mark in a speaking exam, follow this advice:

- Make sure that what you say is relevant to the question(s) that the examiner asks you.
- If you don't understand the examiner's questions or instructions, ask them to repeat.
- Speak! If you are too nervous or shy, the examiner won't be able to give you a good mark. Relax and remember that the examiner is on your side.
- Speak loudly and clearly so that the examiner can hear you.
- Don't write complete answers before you speak. React to what the examiner or your partner(s) are saying.
- Practise speaking as much as you can before the exam.

Formal letters

Start: Write your address and the date in the top right corner. Write the address of the person you are writing to a little lower, on the left. Then write Dear Mr (Smith) (for a man), Dear Mrs (Smith) (for a married woman), or Dear Ms (Smith) (when we make no distinction if a woman is married or not). When we do not know the name of the person we are writing to, we write Dear Sir or Madam.

Style: Do not use contractions.

Useful expressions in applications: Begin I am writing to apply for... or I am writing in response to the advertisement in... Use I believe I would be perfect for this (scholarship/job) because..., I would be grateful to receive the chance to (study/work) in your (university/company). Use I believe (instead of I think), I would be very grateful (instead of I'd like). End I look forward to receiving your reply, or I look forward to hearing from you.

Useful expressions in letters of complaint: Begin I am writing to complain about... Use I demand (a refund/replacement/apology), If I do not hear from you (in the next two weeks), I will take my complaint to a Consumer Advice Centre. Use I believe (instead of I think), I would be very grateful (instead of I'd like). End I look forward to receiving your reply, or I look forward to hearing from you.

Useful linkers: Consequence: Therefore, and so, As a result. Time and sequence: Firstly, Next, Then, In the end. Contrast: but, although, However, Nevertheless. Reason: because, as, since. Addition: In addition, What is more, Furthermore.

End: When we know the name of the person we are writing to, use Yours sincerely. When we don't know the name of the person we are writing to, use Yours faithfully.

Content in applications: Begin by saying what you are applying for. Explain why you would be good for this position. Mention any experience you have. Give details of some of your strengths that make you a good candidate.

Content in letters of complaint: Begin by explaining why you are writing. Say where and when the problem began. Give details of the complaint. Demand a solution. Say what action you will take if there is no solution.

A for and against essay

Style: Formal. Do not use contractions.

Useful vocabulary: advantage, disadvantage

Useful linkers: Introducing and sequencing arguments: Firstly, Secondly, Finally. Adding arguments: Furthermore, What's more, In addition. Making contrasts: On the one hand..., On the other hand..., in contrast, However, but, although, Nevertheless. Consequence: Therefore, and so, As a result. Reason: because, as, since. Opinions: In my opinion, Personally I think..., As far as I'm concerned. Concluding: In conclusion, To sum up.

Content: Suggested paragraph plan

- Paragraph 1: State the topic of the essay using general statements
- Paragraph 2: Make points for (or against)
- Paragraph 3: Make points against (or for)
- Paragraph 4: Conclusion – restate the most important arguments and give your own opinion

A book review

Useful vocabulary: Books: happy ending, main character, minor characters, plot, author, fictional, writing style, realistic, description. Positive adjectives to describe books: brilliant, exciting, funny, hilarious, great, inspiring, interesting, moving. Negative adjectives to describe books: awful, boring, stupid, uninspiring. Types of book: suspense, comedy, historical novel, adventure, science fiction.

Useful expressions: To give your opinions, use Personally, I think, As far as I'm concerned, In my opinion, I agree/disagree with... To explain and justify your opinions, use This is because, For example. To give recommendations: I would/wouldn't recommend you to read this book because... To give a conclusion, use To sum up, In conclusion.

Useful grammar:

- 1 We use modifying adverbs to make adjectives stronger or softer in order to give more accurate descriptions. For example, we use very, extremely and really to make 'normal' adjectives (e.g. good, bad) stronger. We use totally, absolutely, really and completely to make 'extreme' adjectives (e.g. fantastic, awful) stronger. We use quite and rather to make 'normal' adjectives a little softer.
- 2 To make descriptions more interesting, use so + adjective or such + (adjective) + noun, e.g. It was so beautiful, He's such a great friend.

Content: Suggested paragraph plan

- Paragraph 1: Basic information about the book
- Paragraph 2: A summary of the plot or story
- Paragraph 3: Your opinion of the book

An announcement

Style: Use short, clear sentences. Make the announcement easy, fast and interesting to read. Begin each new idea on a new line, with a bullet (-) or dash (-). Use exclamation marks.

Start: Have a slogan or a title which attracts attention.

End: Use For more information, call/contact...

Content: Say what the event is that you are announcing. Include all the practical information that a reader needs to know, for example:

- What the event is.
- What you want from people.
- When you want it.
- If there are any prizes.
- When the event is.
- Who can be in the event.
- What people should do if they want more information.

Stories, narratives and anecdotes

Useful expressions: To say when things happened use, for example: Last weekend, Two weeks ago, On Friday, On Saturday night.

Useful linkers: To explain the sequence of events use At first, First of all, Next, Then, After that, Later, Suddenly, Finally, In the end.

Useful grammar: Narrative tenses

- 1 Past simple. We use it to tell the main events and actions in the story.
- 2 Past continuous. We use it to describe scenes, to say what activity was in progress when another interrupted it.
- 3 Past perfect. We use it for the background of the story, to talk about actions that happened before other actions in the past.
- 4 used to. We use it to talk about past habits.
- 5 must/may/might/can't have. We use these to make speculations or deductions about what happened.

Content: Suggested paragraph plan:

- Paragraph 1: Explain where and when the story begins. Introduce the characters.
- Paragraphs 2 and 3: Explain the main events in the story.
- Paragraph 4: Explain how the story ended and what the consequences were.

Checking your writing

▶ All units

Check for mistakes with:

- punctuation
- capital letters
- word order
- spelling
- tenses
- vocabulary
- missing words
- agreement between the subject and verb (e.g. He go)
- style
- content

► Additional activities

Unit 1, Making suggestions and persuading

Exercise 5, page 10

Work in pairs. Each choose an extra-curricular activity that you would like to do. Persuade your partner to join you by giving reasons. Look at the Speaking Bank on p77 under Making suggestions and Persuading for useful language.

Unit 4, Offering to help

Exercise 6, page 45

Work in small groups. Look at each other's announcements and act as an 'organising committee'. First, choose a 'chair' to take notes on who does what and to summarise roles at the end. Each student should offer to take responsibility for one aspect of the event. Look at the Speaking Bank on p77 under Offering to help for useful language.
